PREVENTING LEPTOSPIROSIS WITH KLERAT

For many home owners, rat and mice control is a major concern. Rats and mice are especially unpopular, because they are dirty, and they have the tendency to bring disorder into homes. Once inside your home, their constant need to chew can lead them to destroy shoes, clothes, walls, furniture and more. They are also constantly on the prowl for food. So unsecured boxes are often ripped into and urine and mouse or rat droppings are left behind.

Apart from the disorder that rats and mice infestation can bring, rat and mice droppings often contain viruses and diseases, which can spread to people. In 2009, after tropical storm Ondoy hit Luzon, 89 leptospirosis-related deaths were reported. Leptospirosis is a deadly disease which affects the kidney and liver, caused by contamination due to rat urine. With symptoms that are almost flu-like, leptospirosis in its early stages usually starts with head and muscle aches, eye pain (caused about by bright lights), chills and fever. Eventually, nerve swelling—particularly in the head, eyes and spinal cord, plus abdominal pain occurs.

Now that it's the rainy season all over again, the best form of leptospirosis prevention is to keep rats and mice out of your home with the help of an effective rats and mice killer like Klerat.

Klerat is a ready to use rats and mice bait that kills both in one feeding. While other rat killers in the market require several feedings for the rat to acquire enough poison, thus, making it more expensive. Klerat comes in two forms—wax block and pellet. Klerat Pellet, recommended for indoor use, is in easy to use tray packs. Klerat Wax Block on the other hand, is recommended for outdoor use, because it can stand wet and moisture. It can also be nailed to make sure it will stay in one place.

Klerat is distributed by Jardine Distribution, Inc. For more information you may call 02-8436011-19 or 0920-9102629. Become a Klerat fan in  Facebook by clicking on <http://www.facebook.com/home.php?#!/pages/Klerat/119725058078837>.
